INTRODUCTION

In April 2003, the Ministry of Health (MOH) of the Government of Armenia and the PRIME II project, funded by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), launched a program on Gender-Based Violence in Armenia. The goal of the program is to improve the response to violence against women (VAW) by the reproductive health sector. The specific program objectives include the following:

- Increase awareness among health professionals regarding VAW as a public health concern
- Improve knowledge, attitudes and practices of health workers related to VAW
- Increase cooperation between the health sector and other agencies helping women who experience violence (including shelters, social, legal and psychological counseling services)
- Improve the readiness of a health facility to support identification and management of VAW
- Improve the perceived quality of services

The MOH together with PRIME II selected Polyclinic# 8 in Arabkir District, Yerevan as the demonstration site for the program on violence against women. Physicians and nurses working in the women's consultation of the polyclinic are directly involved in the program, which will involve training, reorganization of services, and expansion of health promotion activities.

The Directory of organizations offering in Gender-Based Violence (GBV): Community Resources in Yerevan was developed with joint effort of PRIME II, the MOH and the Ministry of Social Security. The publication primarily serves as an informational guide for health workers to have accurate information about the resources available in the community for women who experience violence. The directory identifies and provides contact information for many of the governmental and non-governmental agencies existing in Yerevan that provide information and services related to problems of domestic violence, trafficking, and other forms of violence against women.

The creators of the Directory hope that the publication will be useful to all agencies involved in helping women, children and families who are at risk for violence and conflict. By increasing awareness of the kinds of services and activities that currently exist in Armenia, use of the directory may contribute to a strong coordinated response to the problem of violence against women in our society and ultimately lead to more women receiving the services they need.
